About Successful Families

The primary goal of the Successful Families program is to give recipients a training environment that will teach work skills and work habits.

The Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services (SRS) develops training sites across Kansas with private businesses, public and not-for-profit agencies.

Prior to placement, participants are assessed by SRS staff to determine the most appropriate training site. SRS staff are available to address employers' and participants' needs during the training process.

A simple agreement is established between the employer and SRS at each site.

Participants who successfully complete their training programs will have valuable references to use in seeking permanent employment. Employers who participate in the program will have the advantage of hiring for vacancies from a labor pool whose work habits and skills have been previewed.
